Big Fire Last Night Destroys Honeycup Ice Cream Plant

Efforts Of Firemen Kept Flames From Sub-Station

REPAIRS ALREADY

Might Have Cut City's Electricity Off for 30 Days—Started by Some One Stealing Gasoline

Fire of doubtful origin destroyed the Honeycup Ice Cream plant last night, causing a total loss estimated at approximately $40,000. The K. U. sub-station in an adjoining building was saved though two large trucks belonging to the ice plant were seriously damaged. The building and the equipment were insured, though it is doubtful if the loss is entirely covered.

The fire was discovered by Luther Smith at about 10:30 o'clock last night. He notified the watchman at the K. U. ice plant who immediately gave the alarm to the fire department. Firemen arrived on the scene as quickly as possible and began a fight which saved the sub-station and surrounding buildings.

The manner in which the fire originated was evident. The doors of the garage at the front of the ice cream plant had been broken open. The tank of the huge five-ton ice delivery truck had been punctured and emptied of gasoline. Whether or not the fire was intentionally caused by the person who had brokn open the door or was accidental is not known. Judge J. L. Manring, president of the ice cream company, stated that he believed the person who broke open the door merely intended to steal gasoline from the tank. K. U. officials report that trucks there previously have been thus robbed of gasoline.

Firemen Work Quickly

The fire had gained considerable headway when the firemen arrived. The gasoline flames had quickly mounted to the ceiling and ignited this and the wooden parts of the interior. Water connections were quickly established. The main fight was directed against that part between the fire and the sub-station. Destruction of this would have deprived the city of electrical current for at least thirty days, according to W. C. Stair, local manager of the Kentucky Utilities company. Mr. Stair and his assistants were on the scene as well as hundreds of less interested spectators.

A new two-ton White truck which was bought yesterday and placed in the garage was removed from the burning building before it was destroyed though the five-ton truck could not be extricated from the burning room. Covered with charred debris, it was still in the building this morning.

Firemen bravely combated the flames until they were extinguished, remaining on the scene until after daylight this morning. Workmen were dispatched to the scene early today and begun work of making a temporary roof over the establishment. Judge Manring says he will try to have the place in operation again within two weeks, though it may take longer as a thorough examination of the damaged property is as yet impossible. Meantime, he will try to make arrangements to take care of his patrons.

Was Partly Insured

Mr. Stair stated that the damage to the building would be about $8,000, provided the walls have not been damaged. The damage to the trucks has not been estimated. The loss to the building is covered by insurance, he stated.

Members of the Honeycup Cream firm stated that the plant had cost about $30,000 and that they carried insurance to the amount of $15,000. Considerable stock was carried in the ice cream plant, among which was 500 gallons of milk. Some of the machinery may be damaged beyond repair, Judge Manring stated, it being impossible to determine this definitely until the debris has been removed.

The Honeycup Ice Cream company began operation a few weeks ago. Business was rapidly increasing with the firm and yesterday the firm enjoyed the biggest business it had ever done in a single day. The entire plant was equipped with machinery of the latest type.

Boom Days Banker Visits Here After 30 Years Absence

Mr. and Mrs. U. G. Marvin of Nekoosha, Wis., visited Middlesboro this week for the first time since leaving here thirty years ago. They were boom day settlers of Middlesboro and expressed great surprise over the development that the town had made, especially as they had heard from time to time of the dull times here during the period of depression.

Mr. Marvin came here thirty-four years ago when the Coal and Iron Bank was established and worked in it until it closed four years later. From here he went north and had not been back since.

The Marvins, with Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Armstrong and daughter, Sarah, of Milwaukee motored here from Wisconsin and will start on their return trip tomorrow. They have been visiting old friends, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Catlison, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Sprague and others here.

They spoke enthusiastically of the beauty of the place and of the surrounding territory through which they had motored. Mr. Marvin said he had lost track of Middlesboro the past few years and had heard nothing of its second boom and its progress of recent years.

DENIES REDUCTION TEACHERS' SALARIES

Squire Smyth Says Fiscal Court Means No Harm to County Schools

Indignant denial of charges brought against the Fiscal Court by Prof. Knuckles in an open forum letter in the Daily News yesterday was made today before the Kiwanis Club by Magistrate C. G. Smyth, himself a member of the Fiscal Court. Mr. Smyth branded the letter as a misrepresentation, if not a down right falsehood.

Mr. Smyth denied that there would be any reduction in Bell County teachers' salaries. He said that the Court and Camie Wilson, county superintendent had agreed, because they had a large surplus on hand and because the bond issue would boost county taxes this year any way, to reduce the school appropriation from 50 cents to 40 cents, the rate it had been before last year. This was done providing no cut should be made in teachers' salaries, the Fiscal Court promising to call a special meeting to raise money if more was needed, the magistrates say.

Open Motorcycle Shop

Clayton Walker is opening a motorcycle shop on Cumberland avenue in the frame building near the K. U. office. He has the agency for the Harley-Davidson motorcycle and will also sell accessories. Motorcycle and bicycle repairing will be done at the establishment.

SAYS TOURISTS BETTER THAN COAL BUSINESS

Senator Moss Tells What Roads Will Bring

KIWANIS SPEAKER

Names Summer Resort Qualities of This Section—Short Discussion of Highway Situation

White L. Moss of Pineville, this district's popular state senator, was speaker of the day today at the Kiwanis Club, his subject being his favorite topic, Roads. Major E. S. Helburn was chairman of the meeting and introduced the speaker.

In beginning Senator Moss spoke of Middlesboro's particular connection with roads in Kentucky because this is the residence of Joe F. Bosworth, father of goods roads in the state. He spoke highly of the work Bosworth had done for roads, showing how the matter had grown from its start until now.

"The public highways are the biggest problem of today," said Senator Moss. "We just have enough now for a taste, but when the roads here are completed we will find them our greatest single asset. Our coal business will be small compared to what the tourists will mean to Southeastern Kentucky when they start coming through here," he declared. "I believe all of the towns in this section will grow more in the next ten years than they have in the past twenty."

The speaker went on to tell of the phenomenal growth of Florida towns since the tourist influx. He then spoke of the wonderful attractions of this section as a summer resort. Here, he said, in the upper Cumberland river was recognized to be the best place in the country to fish for small-mouthed bass. Here is the most wonderful scenery imaginable and here the summer nights are always cool and comfortable. When the road is completed to Ashland along the Cumberland river, it will be the greatest scenic road in the United States if not in the whole world, declared Senator Moss.

Turning to the road situation in Kentucky, Senator Moss said it was indeed serious but that this section must trust to Major Helburn to look out for their interests in it. He spoke of the setback the cancellation of the road contracts was but offered assurance that the matter would right itself in a few months. He praised highly the work Major Helburn was doing on the highway commission.

The senator closed with an invitation to local Kiwanians to come to Pineville the evening of May 20 to see moving picture scenes of the west, Yellowstone Park and other places, to be shown after the Pineville club luncheon that evening.

Announcement was made to the club of the Inter-city Kiwanis meeting to be held here next Thursday, at which time District Governor A. P. Ballou of Louisville will be here. It was also voted to have a committee draft resolutions of sympathy from the Kiwanis Club to the Honeycup Ice Cream Co. for its fire loss last night.

Building in West End Is Resumed

Residence building which continued uninterrupted in the West End last year has been resumed in earnest again this spring. Houses are now springing up particularly in Noetown, and there will not be many available building sites left there at the end of the year if the boom continues.

Construction of three new houses was begun there this week. Ira Gibson has begun the erection of a six room house and Elmer Johnson and Caney Hedge have each started the construction of four room bungalows.

LODGE PROPOSES ESTABLISHMENT OF WORLD COURT

Senator Outlines New Hague Tribunal Suggestion

SIT ONCE YEAR

Body Would Interpret Treaties, International Law, Settle Breaches of Obligation

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Senator Lodge, chairman of the foreign relations committee, today introduced in the Senate a resolution for the establishment of a World Court at The Hague to which the United States would adhere.

The resolution asks President Coolidge to call the third Hague Tribunal to create a new court to be composed of sixteen judges to be selected by an electoral commission from signatory powers. The Tribunal would sit once a year with extraordinary sessions authorized at the call of its president.

"Signatory powers would recognize as compulsory jurisdiction of the court in all cases of legal dispute concerning interpretation of treaties, questions of international law, evidence of breach of obligations and the nature and extent of indemnity for such breach.

INVESTIGATIONS IN SENATE OPEN AGAIN

Montana Lawyer Tells of Sleuth's Search to "Smear" Walsh and Wheeler

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Activities of Blair Coan, Republican national committee investigator, who went to Montana to make inquiry into the records of Senator Walsh of the oil committee and Senator Wheeler of the Daugherty committee, were further described today in the Senate Daugherty investigation.

A. A. Gror, Helena attorney, testified he talked with Coan in April. "Coan came to me and said he wanted something with which to smear Senator Walsh," Gror said. He said Coan said they had Wheeler where they wanted him and now they would get something on Walsh. "I told Coan there was nothing in the Campbell case on which the Wheeler indictment was based," Gror said, "but he said they would have the indictment to hold over Wheeler, any how."

DEPUTY'S SLAYER STILL AT LARGE

Reward Offered for Capture—Sheriff Believes He's Still Around Camp

Fred Lane, alleged slayer of Andy Baird, Bell county deputy sheriff, at Kettle Island Saturday night, is still at large. Sheriff Martin Green has offered a reward of $100 for his capture and it is expected the state will offer this much or even a larger sum for his apprehension.

The sheriff is working on the theory that Lane is still in the vicinity of his home at the Kettle Island camp. He, with some deputies, lay out nearly all night on one occasion since the killing and watched for the man to return to his home but their vigil went unrewarded. All indications are that he has never left the vicinity of the crime. Baird's successor has not been appointed.

CO-DEFENDANTS WITH LANGLEY PLEAD GUILTY

Carey and Huth Today Change Pleas to Court

SPEED UP TRIAL

Witnesses Tells of Conference In Lexington Over Permits and Money Received for Part

By Associated Press.

COVINGTON, May 8.—Walter B. Carey of Canton, Ohio, and M. E. Huth of Alliance, Ohio, two of the four defendants with Congressman John W. Langley on trial in Federal Court here on charge of conspiracy to defraud the government, reversed their pleas of not guilty and entered formal pleas of guilty when court convened today.

The change in these pleas is expected to speed up the trial. Testimony at the early session today involved the identification of Langley's signature on Louisville and Lexington hotel registers.

Gus Schwarzkopf, mentioned in the testimony yesterday as having attended a conference in Lexington and Louisville with Langley and his co-defendants today told of conversations he heard between Langley and Sam Collins, then Federal Prohibition Director of Kentucky. He said Langley told them he "though he could fix Collins." The witness told of a conference in a Lexington hotel between Milton Lipshultz of Philadelphia, Elias H. Mortimer, Thomas J. Finn and Carey. Finn brought $2,000 to the room one night in a liquor deal, the witness said, and a few days later brought $28,000. He added, "It was the balance on $30,000 due Lipschultz on the permit to remove whiskey." He said the money was taken to Philadelphia where it was counted in the presence of J. R. Rickenburg and Lipschultz's father. Later the witness related he "gave each of us a little less than $4,000."

Arrest Man Who Gave Bad Check for Auto

Several days ago the stranger bought a new car from the Catron garage, giving a check as the initial payment. The proprietor was informed by the Pineville bank on which the check was drawn that Morgan had an account there. It developed that his account there had been made with a bad check.

His parents lived in the furnace district. The remains were taken to Washburn, Tenn., for burial Monday.

Every Tenth Death From Tuberculosis

ATLANTA, May 8.—Tuberculosis must play a most important part in every phase of public health work" said Dr. R. L. Carlton of Winston-Salem, N. C., before the National Tuberculosis Association here today.

"Because the records of deaths show us that one in every ten to twelve is a tuberculosis death; because it has been determined that practically everyone is at sometime infected with tuberculosis; because no age nor sex is entirely immune; because so much depends upon the individual's resisting power as to whether the invasion of the body shall result in disease and death or merely in a healed lesion; because this disease destroys the young adult in the most productive age; because housing conditions, general sanitation, protection of food supplies, etc. are deciding influencing factors in the prevention of this disease; because of these facts tuberculosis should play a very important part in every general health program.

Community Chest Drive This Year Will Be May 27

K. H. S. Seniors Call off Dance Result Revival

KNOXVILLE, May 8.—Senior class of Knoxville High school by a 125 to 120 votes Tuesday morning definitely decided to call off its annual dance at the Cherokee Country club. Fifty members of the class did not vote.

The voluntary abandonment of the dance came as the direct result of the war on dancing waged by John Brown, evangelist. The campaign against the dance was taken up and carried on by the High School Prayer Meeting club, headed by some of the most popular students of the school.

The storm of sentiment against the annual dance which has been held for 17 years ended in what leaders of the movement declared to be an overwhelming victory. Nothing but the dance question has held sway in weeks and many verbal battles have been staged in the daily meetings of the class.

Eloquent addresses were delivered by adherents of each side, causing a nar division of the class. The officers decided that the best means of settling the trouble was to put the entire affair up to a vote of the class. This resulted in cancelling the dance.

SOUTHERN BAPTISTS MEET IN ATLANTA

7,000 Church Representatives Expected at Convention Next Week

ATLANTA, Ga., May 8.—From every section of the south and southwest large delegations are planning to attend the Southern Baptist convention, which opens here May 14, according to advices that have been received by the local committee on entertainment. Approximately a dozen trains and scores of special Pullman cars have been engaged to bring the messengers and the attendance is expected to reach 7,000.

One of the factors contributing to the large attendance this year is the widespread interest among the constituents of the denomination generally in the important matters that will claim attention at this year's session.

The convention's first major business will be the consideration of plans for the completion of the "75-million campaign," which will hold the right of way on the first afternoon, following the organization and the convention sermon, which will be preached by Dr. Finley P. Gibson, of Louisville, Ky., at the first morning session.

The next program in behalf of missions, education and benevolences that will follow the completion of the "75-million campaign," will claim large attention from the messengers, also, and a large committee is now formulating definite recommendations for the presentation to the body.

Plans are being made to have the services of the convention broadcast in order that many thousands of Baptists who do not attend the body in person may have the opportunity to listen in on the proceedings.

Appoint Chairman of Campaign Committees

MEET YESTERDAY

Organize Forces For Drive—Those Present Pleased With 1923 Work Confident of 1924 Success

Organization of forces for the Community Chest drive this year took place at the meeting held in the office of Major E. S. Helburn, president of the organization, yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The date for the drive this year was fixed as Tuesday, May 27. Final reports of the financial condition given by Secretary William Wallbrecht indicated that collections for the 1923 fund were excellent and that there is a small balance with which to begin this year's work.

Major Helburn stated that he would be compelled to be out of town during the next few weeks and suggested that a temporary chairman be appointed to carry on the work.

G. H. Talbott was made chairman of the advertising committee; other members of the committee appointed were: H. C. Chappell, Bayard Yadon and C. O. Brown. A. M. Kinnaird was made chairman of the budget committee with the following assistants: J. H. Keeney, J. F. Bosworth, Supt. J. W. Bradner and C. A. Blackburn. The following men compose the rating committee: W. E. Frazer, R. K. Judy and J. L. Manring.

A meeting of the budget committee will be held at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in the office of Major Helburn. At this time reports will be heard from the various beneficiaries as to what disposition was made of the money last year.

Major Helburn and members present at the meeting expressed themselves as confident that the drive will be made and the quota, yet to be decided on, could be reached without difficulty. The Community Chest which was organized last year and which was in the experimental stage throughout the year has been a decided success and the work of raising funds should be less arduous than last year, all felt.

Mr. Wallbrecht's report showed that approximately $700 of the entire amount of nearly $18,000 subscribed had not been collected. Nearly all of those who had failed to pay the full amount of their pledges have either died or moved out of town. One hundred and fifty dollars of the amount unpaid is considered collectible. The organization now has $2,522.60 in cash on hand. After the bills payable are settled, the final balance in cash at the end of the fiscal year, May 31, will be approximately $988.

Committees appointed to conduct the drive and the work preliminary to it will be busy from now until after the drive working out details. Every effort will be put forth to make the drive a success, to go over the top this year as was done in a single day last year.

IN DEFFENSE OF PROHIBITION

"Missourians very generally, it is believed, are mighty glad that Dr. Stratton D. Brooks, president of the state university, replied to Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, when the latter denounced the Volstead act," the Kansas City Star says.

"The subject was not on the program of the Missouri Society's New York dinner; Dr. Butler injected it gratuitously. He was directly challenged when he declared the eighteenth amendment could not be enforced, that it should not have been adopted and that no liberal could support it.

"Probably Dr. Butler was sincere. There is no conceivable reason why the distinguished educator should have taken this position without sincerity. But he has not made sufficient study or observation of the effect of the amendment or he could not have reached the conclusion he voiced. Dr. Brooks doubtless is better informed as to the attitude of people in the rural districts and small towns. He may be wrong in stating that 80 per cent of the people are favorable to prohibition, but certainly the great majority are for the amendment and for enforcement.

"There should be no hurtful confusion between what prohibition really has accomplished and what it has so far failed to accomplish. Nor should anyone be misled as to the ultimate attitude toward the amendment because of flagrant disregard for it now, not only by trafficking bootleggers, but by those who deal with them.

"Such regulations as those of intoxicants and narcotics are more difficult to enforce than are many other laws, and effective enforcement comes by slow process. But in time violations will not be more common than are those of many other laws long accepted as both desirable and restraining. Even now no right thinking person would advocate the repeal or modification of the narcotic act merely because it is particularly difficult to enforce and many violations are committed.

"It has become a commonplace to say the Volstead law invites violation and is responsible for a light regard for all other laws. Isn't it more rational to say with Dr. Brooks that at this time of general disregard for law—presumably one of the after-results of the war—it is especially hard to enforce prohibition?"

DESPOILING THE BLOSSOMS

With all the wealth of natural beauty that the country around Knoxville affords, there is not enough to justify wanton, or should we say thoughtless, destruction. Why should a few of the public deprive all the rest of the public of this beauty, much or little, for the sake of a passing whim of no lasting benefit even to the spoilers themselves.

Of course, they do not so regard themselves, these people who break off and carry away great boughs of dogwood and wild fruit blossoms. They do not feel like despoilers. On the contrary, they doubtless feel they are proving their own sense of the beautiful when they load up their arms or their automobiles with masses of blossoms. They fully intend to carry them home to place in vases.

Some of them are really carried home; many of them are soon dropped by the wayside or on the road to wither and die, not only of no use to anyone, but actually a mass of litter that must be swept away. Those that are actually carried home, even those that are really put in vases instead of the garbage can, last a few hours, die and become trash.

But, say the despoilers, the blossoms are short lived, anyway, a few more days and they will be gone from the trees. True enough, as to the blossoms. It is the branches, even the limbs, that are ruthlessly torn from the tree, wood that will require two or three years to grow back.

Leaving aside the question of the legal right to go upon someone's property and take away anything thereon, the moral wrong cannot cannot be questioned.

A wise man, poor in this world's material goods, but rich by reason of his appreciation, was walking with an acquaintance past a beautiful estate, a splendid home, trees, flowers and shrubs, fountains and all that go with these. "All this is mine," said he. "Isn't it beautiful?" The acquaintance was astonished. "You don't tell me," said he. "Why I thought you were a poor man. That place is worth a fortune."

"Yes," said the poor man. "It is worth a fortune, both to me and to the man who bids the deed, whoever he may be. But his deed cannot take away the ownership of it. This is mine and yours, too, if you love beauty. Beauty has no single owner unless he hides it away. When I see a beautiful tree, its beauty is mine to enjoy as long as I like. I have little money, it is true, but I am rich in the posession of all the beauty that comes to my eyes."

The beauty of the country round about is the posession of the public who choose to look on and to appreciate it. The person who ruthlessly tears it down to gratify a momentary desire of the individual posession, is stealing it away from the rest of the public, to whom its beauty belongs. —The Journal and Tribune.

Masters of Music

By ERNEST BLOCH,
Noted Composer and Winner of the Coolidge Prize, 1919

MODEST MOUSSORGSKY

Composer Quit Army

Most of the truly Russian composers did not start their careers as musicians.

Borodine, the composer of "Prince Igor," was a chemist by profession. Rimsky-Korsakoff was a naval officer. And Moussorgsky, the greatest of all, was a petty officer in the Russian army. But later, after having resigned from the army in order to devote himself entirely to music, Moussorgsky was compelled by poverty to accept a government position.

His technical book-knowledge of music was always very slight. However, in his case it was evidently no handicap—for it enabled him to approach music and life without prejudice, and to discover for himself a completely new and original musical language.

For many years his music was misunderstood. Only 20 years after his death did a few Europeans musicians begin to know and love his music. And only several years later, after the production of "Boris Godunoff" at the opera, with Chaliapin in the title role, did his universal fame begin to grow. Even in 1908 or 1909 a musical critic of France wrote him a letter, quite ignorant of the fact that he had been dead for nearly 30 years.

Moussorgsky's music is the most truly Russian that exists. It embodies the whole Russian soul. With the simplest and most direct means he is able to evoke a complete personality, a landscape, with all gradations of psychology, from humor to religious fanaticism—or the drama in the complex soul of Boris Gudunoff.

GEORGE FREDERICK HANDEL

Handel an Optimist

I have often said that Shakespeare is the greatest English musician. I cannot find anyone among the so-called musicians of te nation who embodies the soul of England as he does.

In spite of many notable musicians, it is true of Great Britain as as of France and America that music is not thus for the natural language in which the soul of the British people expresses itself.

Handel, though German by birth spent the greatest part of his life in England. He might almost be said to be an Englishman by adoption. His music has nowhere been so much admired and understood, and perhaps he, more than any other musician has embodied the soul of England.

His music seems always full of external force, of pride, of grandeur. It is full of will power, of light, of action.

While Bach looks into his own soul and expresses what he finds there, Handel is intoxicated with the world outside himself. He put this into his music. It is this quality that gives Handel's music its universal appeal. While Bach remained unappreciated and almost unknown for a hundred years after his death, Handel was everywhere acby Mozart and Beethoven—as the world's greatest musician.

Handel's music is stimulating, full of conviction, always affirmative. Performers like to play it because its external grandeur inspires them with its optimism. Even in its darker moods it never reaches the depths of pessimism and despair that Bach sometimes does. But it rarely, if ever, has Bach's depth either.

Put a bottle of the real Orange-Crush to your lips, and take just one taste!

Say, Mister, if you wouldn't be willin' to fight for a drink like that, you're not livin' up to American traditions!

Here are six reasons why Orange-Crush is so utterly delicious: (1) The natural fruit oil of oranges; (2) The natural acid of citrus fruits (oranges, lemons and limes); (3) Orange juice; (4) Pure carbonated water; (5) U. S. Certified food color; (6) Pure cane sugar.

REDWOOD SHINGLES FOR CLUB HOUSE

Will Give Bungalow Appearance—Other Improvements Started

The improvement program which will make the Middlesboro Country Club house a first-class building before the state tournament meets here in June was begun today. Redwood shingles for the side of the building which will give it a bungalow appearance were sent to the grounds this morning and work was scheduled to start.

The place will be electrically lighted, work having already been started on the line to that point. For the convenience of lady visitors a number of locker rooms will be built. A shelter for saddles will be made outside the club house.

The greens are being kept in excellent condition by frequent mowing and Col. P. P. Scales, state president, promises the visiting golfers that they will be in even better shape before the tournament which will be held June 25-28.

M. H. S. track boys are keeping in good trim for the work and, considering the good record they made at the state meet at Lexington last week it is expected that they will acquit themselves well in the next contest.

WOMAN'S CLUBS AT HARROGATE

Local Club Has Charge Program at Meeting of Three Organizations

Mrs. Clay Cunningham, president of the Nancy Hanks Club, opened the meeting, introducing the Middlesboro president, Mrs. D. G. Hinks, who had charge of the meeting. The program was given by the Middlesboro club.

Girl Witness Is Particular About Whom She Answers

A court does not always preserve an air of sanctity and judges and attorneys do not always do all the smart talking. Some times, as was the case in police court yesterday, witnesses stand in awe of those clothed in judicial authority.

The witness, a girl of nineteen, responded willingly enough on direct examination. Caught in the toils of cross examination, however, she became nettled and sharply scolded the lawyer: "Shut up! You're not my lawyer. I won't tell you nothing!"

Strollers at Pineville Friday Night

CAN'T PARK OVER NIGHT ON AVENUE

Car Owners Who Violate New Ruling Are Haled Into Police Court

A number of automobile owners who left their cars parked on Cumberland avenue during the night were surprised yesterday morning to find tags attached to their cars notifying them to appear in police court for violation of traffic regulations.

The new city penal code which became effective May 1 prohibits parking of cars on Cumberland avenue between Eighteenth and Twenty-second streets between 2 and 6 a. m. This is the time that the streets are washed and the work cannot be done thoroughly as long as cars are left parked on the streets.

The violations which have been reported were doubtless due to the fact that this section of the traffic law has not been announced until recently. Indications are that the public will willingly cooperate in this move which will make it possible to have the streets cleaned without their inconvenience to daily traffic.

CITY REPAIRING EAST END DETOUR

Will Be Used for Travel While Work On Cumberland Avenue Goes On

Work of repairing the East End detour was begun by the city yesterday. J. D. Haddix, with the city prisoners, has been moving old slag from the curbed parks on East Cumberland avenue and placing it on the bad places of the road.

As a number of the property owners have expressed a desire to refill the parks in front of their property with dirt so that grass and flowers may be sown, it is understood that this work will be left entirely to them.

The street is being closed this week so that the East End work may be done without constant interuption by the traffic The city police department has promised to detail a patrolman to guard the entrance to the scene of operations and to route drivers by the detour.

Youthful Hobo, 8, Rides Freight to Appalachia

Stealing rides on freight trains forms a delightful recreation for many persons, particularly those of the younger generation. Rarely do they begin such practice at the tender age of eight, however, as did a local boy recently.

According to Sergt. Bill Lipps, rail road officer, the small boy, without coat or hat, boarded a freight train here and started to Norton. At Appalachia he was taken from the car by an officer who placed him in jail. His parents who thought he had gone to school became worried over his continued absence. They sought the aid of Sergt. Lipps who ascertained the location of the little wanderer and brought him home.
